Looking at the history of a thing from the perspective of that thing

With a gaze of sound and light and in between is color and structure

I have a feeling and I just can't let it go

The constant sound of your body
The deaf hear themselves

And waves and seagulls do too

A voice is not only heard with the ears the whole body listens lungs
veins
blood organs with babies inside

Sound is something other than language Many animals have language but only humans insist on conversation

On a beach in a city
Like a pollution that both soothes
and hurts

Penetrating immensely deep inside the inside answering back

Noise is something always both outside and inside a feeling and

I just

Slicing grapefruits with the correct method

Removing the bitter skin

Slicing grapefruits paper thin so the sun shines through
